

WORLD COURT TO BE PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN ISSUE

REVIVAL OF QUESTION PRACTICALLY ASSURED BY SENATE'S ACTION

Memberh of Foreign Relations Committee Indicate Line of Action

REACH AGREEMENT

What Form Issue Will Take is As Yet Uncertain.

Washington, May 22—American participation in the permanent court of international justice will be placed before the public as an issue in the coming presidential campaign, it was indicated today by members of the senate foreign relations committee which resumed consideration of four conflicting proposals for joining the tribunal.

Revival of the court issue was practically assured when Republican "irreconcilable" members of the committee reached a tentative agreement with Democratic League of Nation advocates to report to the senate "some proposal" for American entry. The "irreconcilables," however, were divided over the best method, a few following the leadership of Senator Lodge, Republican of Massachusetts, who proposed a brand new court entirely separate from the league.

Favor Compromise
Other irreconcilables, headed by Senator Wadsworth, Republican of New York, favored a compromise plan by which the United States could enter the existing court under reservations entirely divorcing it from the league. This plan, drafted by Senator Pepper, Republican of Pennsylvania, with the aid of other committee members, was the most favored.

Democratic members favored any or all of the plans in the hope of bringing the proposal itself before the senate and the public. A separate plan, drafted by Senator Swanson, Democrat of Virginia, would permit the United States to enter the court under the terms laid down by the late President Harding and Secretary of State Hughes.

There is no effort being made to delay consideration of the world court proposal," said Senator Wadsworth today.

Seek Acceptable Form
Republican members of the committee have sought to evolve a scheme to make the court acceptable to all who oppose it in its present form.

"If successful, this plan would lead to American participation in a tribunal that would be a real world court in fact as well as in name. Under conditions laid down, the court would be disassociated from the league without disturbing its personnel or jurisdiction."

Wadsworth predicted one of the several plans would be reported to the senate within the next two weeks chiefly for the purpose of bringing the subject to the public's attention. In this, he was confirmed by Senator Lodge, chairman of committee. "It would be impossible to dispose of such an important international question in the next two weeks or to get a vote on it in the senate," said Lodge, "but I do sincerely hope to get the committee to report some proposal so the whole matter can be placed before the American people."

PENNSYLVANIA R. R. CITED TO APPEAR

Columbus, May 22.—Counsel for the Pennsylvania Railroad company was ordered by the state public utilities commission to appear before it May 23 and show cause why the processes of law should not be enforced to compel the company to equip all locomotives with automatic or footpower fire doors. An order to this effect was issued by the commission on May 3 and called to the attention of the company the section of the Ohio general code which provides that all engines shall be equipped with such safety devices.

SNAP SHOTS

Bothers of Rudolph Schirlock, 50, and his wife, Esther, 42, were found at their farm home near Princeton, Wis. Both died from gunshot wounds, which officials believe were inflicted by Mrs. Schirlock.

Four tanks of the Humble Oil and Refining company at Webster, Tex., were struck by lightning and fired. Damage is estimated at $600,000.

Twenty-three uninstructed delegates were elected at the Missouri Progressive convention at St. Louis to represent Missouri at the national Farmer-Labor-Progressive convention to be held in St. Paul, Minn., June 17.

Uncle Sam's trade with South American countries amounted to $1,748,000,000 last year, an increase of 26 per cent over 1922.

ISADORA DUNCAN NOT BADLY HURT IN AUTO CRASH

London, May 22—Isadora Duncan, famous classic dancer, who met with an accident while motoring to Leningrad (Petrograd) sustained only bruises and shock, said a Moscow dispatch to the Daily Express today.

Paris, May 22—Raymond Duncan brother of Isadora Duncan, told International News Service this afternoon that he had no confirmation of the report printed here that his sister had been gravely injured when her automobile ran into a ditch between Pakoff and Leningrad. He said he had not heard from Isadora for three days.

MILLERAND WANTS TO KNOW ATTITUDE OF HERRIOT PARTY

Paris, May 22.—Before Edouard Herriot, leader of the radical Socialists, is formally invited to form a cabinet, President Millerand wants to know the attitude of his party towards the agreement with J. P. Morgan. It is also necessary for the next premier of France to understand what France has promised the American banker in exchange for the loan that saved the franc from collapse a few months ago. The condition of the exchange is the most vital thing to France right now, and already the franc has shown signs of skidding, due to the uncertainty of the political situation. Premier Poincare has explained the situation to Herriot.

Reports are current that several of the most prominent ministers favor resigning at once and transferring the task of government to the radicals, holding that inactive continuation of office by the present administration until the first week of June is likely to be extremely prejudicial to the financial situation.

MOTHER KILLS HER BABES AND SELF

Canton, O., May 22.—Mrs. Laura Smiley, 42, burned her 6-months-old babe to death, shot her 6-year-old son through the temple and then fired another bullet into her own head. The woman had been driven temporarily insane by illness.

The tragedy was discovered by the husband and father, Roy Smiley, local lumber dealer, when he returned home for lunch. The tiny form of Charlotte, 6 months old, was found wrapped in a rug, which the woman had ignited in her frenzy. The boy, evidently the next victim, was placed on the floor in a downstairs room. Placing the muzzle of the rifle to his forehead, the mother pulled the trigger, sending a bullet crashing into his brain. The mother then ran to a bedroom on the second floor, where she killed herself.

ECONOMY IS WATCHWORD

Paris, May 22.—The French cabinet today adopted a program of drastic economy reducing the budget 520,000,000 francs. President Millerand presided at the meeting. The president already has the pledge of Edouard Herriot, who will probably be the next premier, that he will continue a policy of economy.

Famous Elwell Murder Case Re-opened-Arrest Said Near

Attorney Says He Has Information Concerning Crime.

New York, May 22.—One of New York's most famous and baffling murder mysteries—the shooting of Joseph Brown Elwell, international whist expert in 1920—was taken out of the police file of unsolved crimes today and conferences were being held which police expect, they say, will lead to the arrest of the slayer.

On the morning of June 11, 1920, Elwell was found dead, clad in pajamas and seated in a chair in his apartment. A bullet wound in his head had ended his life.

Consort of beautiful women, gambler for high stakes in millionaire circles in Florida and Europe, Elwell had lived, police investigation disclosed, a romantic career.

The re-opening of the four year old mystery was brought by Bernard H. Sandler, a lawyer. Today he planned to confer with District Attorney Banton. In his possession, Sandler says,

THAW LEAVES FOR PITTSBURGH HOME; MAY DROP CHARGES

New York, May 22.—After giving bail of $500 on the conspiracy indictment which prevented him from leaving New York Tuesday, Harry K. Thaw left last night for his mother's home in Pittsburgh. The funeral of his brother, Edward Thaw, who died in Pasadena, California, will be conducted in Pittsburgh Friday.

Thaw did not appear in court yesterday. His attorneys arranged for the $500 bail in a conference with General Sessions Judge Olvany and Assistant District Attorney Maloney. His total bail on the three indictments against him here is $10,500.

The indictments, charge attack in the second degree, kidnapping and conspiracy to remove Frederick Gump, Jr., from the court's jurisdiction in 1916. The indictments followed an alleged attack upon Gump.

Gump, who was 16 years old at the time, since has married and now is living in California. The district attorney gave no indication that he had been able to obtain from Gump a promise to come to New York as a witness against Thaw. It would be impossible to press the charges if he should refuse to appear as complainant.

When Thaw was locked up for killing White, his property holdings were worth about $250,000. Today, an associate member of his counsel said the same properties are worth approximately $1,000,000. They comprise shares in foundries, coal and coke mines and Ohio real estate.

Thaw boarded a train last night with the intention of going to Pittsburgh. His departure from New York followed a day of activity during which he was chased by reporters in taxicabs. When cornered Thaw gave out a statement in which he announced he had arranged to have $10 a day paid to Evelyn Nesbit, his divorced wife. She could, he said, add to this sum through her talent as a sculptress. No provision was made for the support of her son, Russell.

HOME SWEEP BY FIRE IN TIFFIN

Tiffin, May 22.—Damage estimated at $25,000 has been caused by fire which almost totally destroyed the interior of the magnificent home here of Mrs. S. N. Sneath, former president of the Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs, and prominent in the national affairs of the organization. The loss included part of the finest library in Tiffin and tapestries and oil paintings.

MRS. REMUS TO DENY CHARGES OF CONSPIRACY

Out On Bail, Wife Of "Bootleg King" To Plead Not Guilty

Cincinnati, O., May 22.—Reports that Mrs. George Remus had been maintaining armed guards over rum runners since her husband was sent to the Atlanta penitentiary, were denied today by Mrs. Remus, who declared the rumors were absolutely false. She denied ever having anything to do with men engaged in the sale of liquor or with armed guards of any kind.

Lee Beatty, assistant district attorney, also stated he had heard nothing of such a report, and was of the opinion that it was but a rumor circulated in connection with the indictment of Mrs. Remus.

Cincinnati, O., May 24.—At liberty on $5,000 bail, Mrs. Imogene Remus, young and pretty wife of George Remus, Cincinnati "bootleg king" of nationwide fame, today insisted that she would plead not guilty on the liquor conspiracy charges returned against her by a Federal Grand Jury at St. Louis.

Remus, who is in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, was another of the seventeen persons indicted by the Missouri district jurors. A third was Harry Boyd, also in the prison at Atlanta.

A fourth, Edward Meininger, of Cincinnati, was arrested yesterday and Mrs. Remus was to produce the caretaker of the palatial Remus home in court this morning. His name is William Mueller.

The indictment, according to St. Louis advices, also included William J. Kinney, a deputy collector of internal revenue there.

The charge against the seventeen named in the St. Louis indictment involved alleged purchase of ownership certificates for removal of 891 barrels, or 30,000 gallons of whiskey from the Jack Daniel distillery warehouse at St. Louis. Mrs. Remus says her acts were legal, so far as she knew, and that she acted under the direction of her husband.

Remus, whose operations involved many millions of dollars, last week told the senate committee investigating the regime of Harry M. Daugherty as attorney general that he had paid between $250,000 and $300,000 to the late Jess W. Smith, roommate and confidante of Daugherty.

QUARANTINE FIGHT WAGED BY FARMERS

Van Wert, O., May 22.—Farmers in this section have employed counsel to wage a legal battle against the quarantine of their cattle, which prevents them from marketing their butter or milk. Dr. D. M. Swinehart, state veterinarian, reported the farmers were armed and would not permit him to test their cattle. Deputy Sheriff A. O. Smith of Allen county, accompanied by detectives, found the farmers were armed, but not armed. Arrangements are being made by authorities to replace a guard about the farms to insure enforcement of the law.

THREE U. S. ARMY PLANES ARE WIDELY CHEERED BY JAPANESE

Flyers Reach Kasumigaura, Japan—Welcomed By Officials of Several Nations On Their Successful Trip.

Kasumigaura, Japan, May 22.—The three United States army planes making a round the world flight, reached here at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

Minato, Japan, May 22.—The three United States army round the world airplanes left here at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon for Kasumigaura, thirty miles outside of Tokyo. The army expected to reach Kasumigaura at 5 o'clock.

The intrepid air flyers who successfully crossed the Pacific ocean were widely cheered as they departed for the Japanese naval base outside of Tokyo.

Governor Aomori of this prefecture, entertained the airmen and wished them success upon their long unprecedented flight.

A thousand townspeople gathered and cheered the airmen as they prepared to begin the next leg of their historic journey. It was the biggest event in the history of the village.

Tokio, May 22.—A Japanese naval airplane circled lazily over the naval base at Kasumigaura late this afternoon to welcome the United States army flyers who are making the round the world flight.

American, Japanese, British and French officials gathered at Kasumigaura to greet the Americans and congratulate them upon the success of their flight.

French and British military officials who are studying the possibility of world flights are keenly interested in the progress made by the Americans. Entertainments are planned here for the American airmen.

The flight from Vitorofu Island via Minato was hampered by fog and storms.

PROSECUTION OF FIVE MEN ALLEGED ACTIVE IN LIQUOR DEALS DEMANDED

Senate Committee Recommends Immediate Action Against Manning and Orr—Daugherty To Be Subpoenaed.

Washington, May 22.—Criminal prosecution of at least five men, who have been exposed in alleged illicit liquor deals by the senate committee investigating former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty, will be demanded by the committee was learned today.

The committee already has recommended that Attorney General Stone bring immediate action against Howard Manning and Will Orr. Stone, who told the committee in executive session that he believed there was a legitimate case against Manning, promised to call the full force of the department into play to "bring to justice all those who were found to have been guilty of wrong doing by the committee."

Committee members would not name the others besides Orr and Manning, against whom prosecution will be requested.

"We do not care to make all the names public until the hearings have been concluded and we have had an opportunity to sift the evidence," said Senator Wheeler, the committee prosecutor.

Orr, former private secretary to ex-Governor Whitman of New York, and Manning, a close friend of Daugherty and the late Jess Smith, were alleged to have been involved in transactions in connection with fraudulent issuance of whiskey withdrawal permits.

Unless present plans are changed, the committees recommendations for prosecution will deal only with witnesses involved in liquor transactions. In view of the indictment of Tex Rickard and Jap Muma, in New York, on charges of illegally transporting the Dempsey-Carpenter fighting films, the committee contemplates no additional action along this line, it was said.

A move to oust H. C. Todd, as special assistant attorney general in charge of the conspiracy case against Gaston B. Means in New York gained strength today. W. O. Menta had been made at the rate of Duckstein, private secretary of E. three per cent cash each quarter.

U. S. CONGRESS OUT OF WOODS ON LEGISLATION

Certain Adjournment By June 7 Now Faces Law-makers.

Washington, May 22.—After wandering in the wilderness of discord and dissension for nearly six months, the turbulent sixty-eighth congress emerged today into the sunny open spaces of comparative harmony and pointed toward certain adjournment by June 7.

The agreement on the tax bill, and the promise that it will be signed by President Coolidge has magically dispelled nine tenths of the trouble in Washington. Congress can now go home and face the electorate "pointing with pride" to the sessions' accomplishments.

Few events since the armistice have been so joyously acclaimed or received with such a feeling of elation as the ending of the long and bitter struggle over tax reduction. And by the terms of the agreement, every faction in congress, Republican, Democratic and insurgent, can claim a victory.

There are no losers.

The Republicans are pleased because they initiated the tax reduction bill and expect to realize on this fact politically. They were successful in enacting all of the Mellon features, including the corporate tax of 12 1/2 per cent, side-tracking the obnoxious provision for publicity of tax returns, and enacting the Longworth rates on states, gifts and hundreds of miscellaneous taxes.

The Democrats are satisfied because they compelled the adoption of the Democratic normal and surtax rates on incomes, and can claim 50 per cent authorship of the bill. They succeeded too, in placing a 12 1/2 per cent limit on reductions for capital losses, defeating Mr. Mellon handily on this point.

Even the insurgents are pleased. They were principally responsible for the defeat of the Mellon rates, particularly on big income and they won a number of victories in the matter of corporation taxing.

Both Republican and Democratic leaders predicted today the passage of the completed tax reduction bill and its signature by President Coolidge within ten days.

"I expect the president to sign the bill," said Senator Smoot, Republican of Utah, chief of the Republican tax cohorts.

"I don't see how he can veto it," said Senator Simmons, Democrat of North Carolina, author of the new income tax rates.

The new law reduces taxes $472,500,000. Elimination of the soldiers' bonus and tax issues today left but two major legislative items to be settled before adjournment—farm relief legislation and the disposition of Muscle Shoals.

In the case of farm relief, much uncertainty exists. It is not unlikely congress will adjourn without passing any notable agricultural legislation.

Muscle Shoals, according to all indications will be continued under governmental control for another year at least.

The confidence that President Coolidge will sign the tax bill was shaken somewhat today when it became known that Secretary Mellon may recommend a straight out and out veto.

The compromise bill, it was announced at the treasury, is "very unsatisfactory" to Secretary Mellon. He regards it as "unscientific and merely destructive of the carefully arranged program which he prepared six months ago."

AMERICAN DEAD OF WOUNDS IN CHINA

Millions of Pounds of Explosives Carried without Accident

One of the nation's most serious transportation problems studied from all angles and is being solved.

Safeguarding the Public

Great progress has been achieved by the Railroads and explosives manufacturers, under the rules of the Interstate Commerce Commission, in the interests of public safety, in the transportation of explosives.

The Bureau of Explosives, organized to work for safe transportation carries on an intensive co-operative effort to secure results.

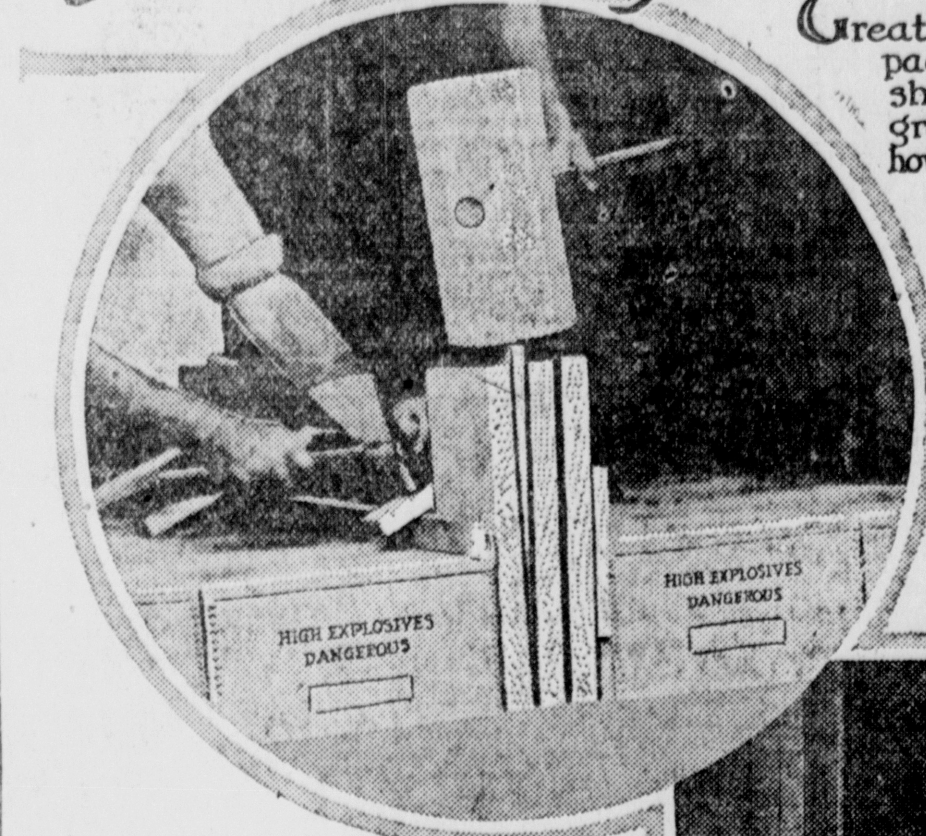

336,000,000 pounds of explosives have been transported in one year without a fatality.

BY COL. B. W. DUNN,
Bureau of Explosives
New York City

THE average citizen knows that explosives are dangerous and that fatal accidents have occurred even when these substances were handled or used by experts. When accidents occur in the manufacture or use of explosives he notes the results with regret but does not feel that personal interest which he would have if an explosion occurred during transportation by rail. He realizes that all of us use the railroads and must assume the risk of being one of the victims of such an accident.

In 1907, the first year in our statistical record, seventy-nine accidents occurred in the transportation of explosives over the railroads of the United States and Canada. Fifty-two people were killed, eighty were injured and the property loss was about half a million dollars. For the six year period (1917-1922) the corresponding averages have been ten accidents, one killed, seven injured and $60,000 property loss. In 1923 no one was killed, only one was injured and the property loss was only $75.

Under normal conditions about 5,000 cars bearing the explosive placards are moving or standing on the railroads' tracks in the United States and Canada all the time. During war conditions in 1918 this total was about 55,000. Assuming the total railroad mileage as 300,000 this means one explosive car for each 60 miles in peace and for each 6 miles in war. Each passenger on a railroad is carried frequently within ten feet of the center of a freight car containing 40,000 or more pounds of explosives. He is vitally interested to learn what has been done to secure his safety.

Great care is taken in packing explosives for shipment. The photograph to the left shows how wooden wedges are placed between boxes of dynamite in freight cars to keep them from slipping.

During the year 1907 the manufacturers of explosives and the Bureau of Explosives, organized by the American Railway Association, started an intensive co-operative effort to secure safety in the transportation of explosives over the railroads of the United States and Canada. Regulations governing manufacture, packing, loading into cars and handling while in transit, were prepared. The two countries were divided into districts and in each a trained inspector was located to promote enforcement of the rules which were adopted and promulgated by the railroad companies.

Experience soon indicated that a legal basis was necessary to uniform enforcement of the rules. A car loaded with explosives is liable to pass over many roads and be handled by many train crews. An explosion can be caused by any one of many possible defects that may remain concealed.

In seeking this legal basis in 1908 the explosive and transportation industries blazed a new trail. Our legislative production plants are overloaded and their equipment for legislation on technical subjects is defective. As a rule they must create and rough-machine law when they should be required only to inspect and give final touches to a finished product. Instead of a variety of machines for different operations, they have practically only one type—the mind of a conscientious legislator without technical knowledge or experience.

Appreciating these facts our committee, representing the two industries, brought a finished product to the federal legislature which resulted in the Act of May, 1908, now coded as Section 232 to 236 of the Act of March 4, 1921.

This act gives the Interstate Commerce Commission power to prescribe rules for the safe transportation of explosives and other dangerous articles and prescribes penalties for violations of such rules. So far the only effect was to transfer the work of drafting rules from one overloaded plant to another. The Interstate Commerce Commission adopted the wise policy of transferring most of the work to the explosive and transportation industries, to the men best qualified by training and experience to frame technical rules of this kind and representing the industries most interested in uniform enforcement.

As a rule the regulations, as submitted by the Bureau of Explosives, after conference with shippers, are promulgated without change. This unusual but desirable method of securing technical legislation by experts not elected to legislative office, whose work is effectively and authoritatively checked and supervised, represents a new development even in a democratic country.

Safety is expensive. A new rule always means new restrictions and additional expenditures of labor and capital. An increase in the thickness of lumber in the dynamite box has cost the manufacturers hundreds of thousands of dollars annually for the past 14 years, amounting to millions of dollars in the aggregate. The annual cost of the Bureau of Explosives maintained by the railroads to promote uniform enforcement of federal rules prescribed under a federal law, costs about $250,000 annually. The manufacturers of explosives are associate members of this bureau and contribute about $6,500 annually to its maintenance. Instead of the usual war between shippers and carriers when money is involved, here is a remarkable case of a self-imposed tax to perform, in the interest of the traveling public, a function that is in reality governmental.

Space limitation prevents mention in this article of the many details of safety precautions and changes in old shipping methods enforced by the rules. Our illustrations show the outside appearance of a car carrying explosives and inside view of the carefully packed and loaded contents. The 12x14 rectangular placard on each side and end advertises the hazard and prescribes the careful handling necessary. It states as follows:

- 1 This car must not be placed in a passenger train, nor in a mixed train if avoidable.
- 2 Cars containing explosives must be near center of train and may be together if desired; must be at least 15 cars from engine and 10 cars from caboose when length of train will permit.
- 3 This car must not be placed next to cars bearing "Inflammable" or "Acid" placard; nor cars containing lighted heaters, stoves or lanterns; nor next to tank cars, or wooden-frame flat or gondola cars; nor next to carloads of pipe, lumber, poles, iron, steel or similar articles liable to break through end of placarded car from rough handling.
- 4 The air and hand brakes on this car must be in service.
- 5 In shifting have a car between this car and engine whenever possible, and do not cut this car off while in motion.
- 6 Avoid all shocks to this car and couple carefully.
- 7 Avoid placing it near a possible source of fire.
- 8 Engines on parallel track must not be allowed to stand opposite or near this car when it can be avoided.
- 9 This placard must be removed from car when the explosives are unloaded.
- 10 The car certificate attached to each side door states over the signature of representatives of the originating carrier and the shipper, that the specially selected and prepared car meets all of the requirements and that the explosives in it were properly packed and loaded.

The personal responsibility imposed by these signatures is an important feature of the rules. Property losses of the carriers have been decreased materially, but the cost exceeds the economy. Safety of life is the primary object. As a sentinel on guard protects his comrades, the explosive and transportation industries are protecting the traveling public.

SHAM BATTLE WILL BE PART OF MEMORIAL DAY CELEBRATION IN XENIA MAY 30

A realistic sham battle between Company L, 147th Infantry, Xenia's National Guard unit and the Cadet Battalion of the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphan's Home will be an added feature of the observance of Memorial Day here, it was announced Thursday.

Arrangements for the sham battle have been almost complete, and insure the reproduction of a cross-section of real modern warfare for the entertainment of holiday crowds. The mock warfare will be staged in a field east of the New Burlington Pike and adjacent to the Home grounds, between 7 and 8 o'clock, Memorial Day night.

Captain Leroy John, commander of the National Guard Company and military officer and commanding Major of the Home Battalion, is in charge of the arrangements, and will direct the operations of the Home soldiers in the sham battle. Lieutenant J. K. Berger, first in command under Captain John of L. Company, will lead the National Guardsmen.

Guardsmen will be in uniform Memorial Day afternoon when they take part in the parade of patriotic organizations to Woodland Cemetery. After the memorial services there, the Company will march to a plot on the New Burlington Pike, and go into camp. The men will prepare their evening meal at the camp, and at the time of the sham battle will march to the scene.

The guardsmen will be the attacking party, and the Home Battalion will be in a defensive position in the field, ready to repulse the invaders. The battalion advance guard will be entrenched along a small creek that bisects the field, with the flank resting at the base of a small hill. Farther back there is a woods, which permits the battalion an advantageous position into which to retreat and stand off the enemy.

Lieutenant Berger, assisted by a regular army sergeant, will lead the attacking forces up the road that flanks the road, and an advance guard will lead forward across into the field, deploying as skirmishers. The first brush with the defensive line will take place at that point, the defenders attempting to repulse the attacking party.

The shooting will be the signal for general firing, and the offensive will bring up the main body and drive the battalion from its position to the hill. About 5,000 rounds of black ammunition has been provided to make the sham battle realistic, and the mimic warfare will last about an hour.

American Legion members are also expected to take part in the show battle. A section of the field out of the firing range will be roped off for spectators.

HOLLAND LAND OF PLUMP CHILDREN

Dutch boys and girls are in bed by 9 o'clock, at least in The Hague. A paternal government sees to it that they have to go to bed. There is nothing else for them to do.

The other night, says a writer, we dined at one of the largest restaurants in The Hague. Not a boy or girl was to be seen. No one was being treated by auntie or uncle, or dining with father and mother, just for once!

We went to see the film of "Monna Vanna," harmless enough surely, and preceded by one of those rollicking pictures in which people fall off roofs into tubs of water or get buckets of paint inverted on their heads. I missed the shrill shrieks of delighted children, hearing instead only bass gruffaws. The notice confronted me as I went out: "Children under eighteen not admitted."

In fact, children less than eighteen can go nowhere in the evening in The Hague. No theater will admit them; the restaurants and picture houses are closed to them, and very soon dancing will be forbidden to them.

Certainly the Dutch boys and girls look wonderfully healthy and happy. Going to bed early agrees with them, if their looks are any criterion. I can scarcely believe that there exists a thin Dutch child.

How, indeed, can they be thin when they drink so much milk?

School children begin the day with about a pint of new milk, warm in winter, cold in summer. With it they eat five or six slices of bread and butter. That keeps them going until they come home from school at 12 o'clock, when another pint of milk has to be drunk and five or six more slices of bread and butter eaten.

The big meal of the day, dinner, is eaten at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, when school is over. After the home lessons are finished the school child drinks another huge glass of milk before going to bed.

"What happens if the children don't like milk?" I asked the mother of a large family, who was dispensing breakfast to her boys and girls.

"I saw the children exchange glances. They have to like it," replied the mother, pouring out a glassful calmly, as she spoke.—London Mail.

Find New Earth Data in Arctic Wilderness

The Pas, Manitoba.—Bringing back data of scientific observations of variation of the earth's magnetism and movement of the north magnetic pole, R. G. Madill, assistant magnetician of Dominion observatory, Ottawa; C. G. Nagy of Winnipeg and Phillip Rose of The Pas have returned from a 4,000-mile trip through Canada's farthest-north wilderness. They told a tale of harrowing experiences and of a summer-long struggle against starvation.

In the course of the journey, which led the party over 4,000 miles of wilderness, mostly by canoe, over a period of two summers, the scientist made a complete study of the magnetic pole, which lies almost due north of here.

At many times, according to Mr. Madill, the party faced starvation and were forced to chew old moccasins, discarded sacks and dried suckers.

FIND ODD TRAFFIC LAWS IN SHANGHAI

American Traveler Tells of Motoring in China.

A friend of mine returned the other day from Shanghai, China, and the tale of the motoring laws in Shanghai may be interesting to American motorists, says Erwin Greer, president of College of Automotive Engineering of Chicago.

In the first place traffic runs along the left side of the street, which is the opposite to the American custom. There are so many Chinamen on the streets that one would naturally suppose the law would require the motorist to drive slowly. On the contrary, they may drive as fast as they wish—it is up to the coolie to get out of the way. However, if the motorist happens to bump a high-class Chinaman or foreigner, who be unto him, for the law takes its full course, and for such an offense the motorist will, nine chances out of ten, find himself in jail, and Shanghai jails aren't very nice when one shares them with numerous coolies.

Few accessories are used on cars in the Orient, but then the cars are, for the most part, not worth doling up. As long as they run on all four wheels nothing is done to them. When repairing is imperative only that work is done which is absolutely necessary.

The roads are narrow and constructed of cobblestones, except in a small downtown district. Cars and trucks do not last very long there.

The traffic officers are Sikh policemen, who stand at the main corners in a sort of dejected manner and wave their hands spasmodically, first in one direction and then in the other. Rickshaws, machines and street cars wait impatiently sometimes while a Sikh policeman settles a dispute among some coolies, then, with a start, wakes up and sends the held-up traffic on once again.

Most machines don't seem capable of breaking any speed laws. However, there are some very honest-to-goodness machines on the streets, driven by chauffeurs, and they for the most part are observant of the speed laws, or, at least, they watch the movements of other cars so as to avoid a collision. Gasoline sells for a dollar a gallon, China money, or about 50 cents in gold. However, you can hire an automobile all day for $5; but why use an automobile when you can have a rickshaw for 50 cents a day and be carried somewhere between ten and twelve miles an hour.

Altogether, motoring in the Orient isn't a very comfortable sport, though most of the well-paid foreigners own automobiles or "motors," as they say over there. If you drive outside of the cities and have a breakdown, then your troubles begin, for there are not many garages in that country. In fact, the only place cars are used is in a short radius of the larger towns.

THIS OUGHT TO DAMPEN ASPIRATIONS TO BE PRESIDENT

If anyone were doubtful before as to aspirations to be President of the United States, the events of the last few days in Washington, with reference to the soldiers' bonus issue, should serve to dampen the ardor of such ambitions. The wide divergence of opinion between the President and congress over the bonus bill, with its far-reaching political effect, clearly demonstrates the tremendous responsibility that rests on the shoulders of the chief executive. The choice between the two paths of desire and duty, upon which might hang the successful consummation of presidential aspirations, was probably not easy. The President, sweeping personal considerations aside, acted according to what he considered the greatest duty of his life. We suppose no one was ever put to a task that he felt more essential, or of more imperative importance than was Mr. Coolidge, when he vetoed the soldiers' bonus bill.

United States Senators, too, were subject to pressure, both ways. Senator Willis has given out some messages he has received.

One of the telegrams to the Ohio Senator came from Youngstown and contained more than 300 signatures. It said:

"We, the undersigned, all ex-service men, 81 officers and 239 enlisted men, hereby notify you that unless you support President Coolidge on the bonus question we will actively work for your defeat at coming election."

A telegram signed by Richard Jones, Jr., of Youngstown, said: "If you do not support President today how can you as a delegate at large support him at the Cleveland convention?"

Another, signed by John Tod, Youngstown, said: "We are expecting you to support the President and his policies on the floor of the Senate, as well as at the Cleveland convention."

A telegram received by Senator Willis from Charles P. Taft, Cincinnati, said:

"I urge you to support the President in his wise, courageous and patriotic veto of the bonus bill."

Senator Willis' explanation of his stand on the subject was carried in dispatches Tuesday, and may or may not satisfy opponents of the bonus.

IN THE MATTER OF THE WORLD COURT

As was suggested by The Commercial Tribune, the Lodge resolution for a revamped World Court at The Hague in substitution for the President Harding proposal of entrance into the International Tribunal has started something. At least it has produced action. Already more than a half hundred organizations throughout the country have memorialized Congress on the subject.

These memorials serve the very definite purpose of letting in light on how the people stand.

There may be significance for Senator Lodge in the fact that the expressions indicate that the people do not stand with him in his substitution. There may be significance to Congress as a whole in the fact that they do indicate that the people stand with a convincing solidarity for the President Harding proposal, that also has the cordial indorsement of President Coolidge.

Congress has been and still is wasting much time. It might redeem some time in giving favorable consideration to the World Court project as outlined by the former President and ratified by the present Executive, Senator Lodge to the contrary notwithstanding.

For after all the people of the United States are more than the Senator from Massachusetts.

THE RIFT WITHIN THE SOUTHERN LUTE

The solid South has been broken again, and this time the break is among the Democrats. As between Underwood as a favorite son and McAdoo as an adopted son, Kentucky chooses the latter.

With considerable manifestation of feeling, hardly to be classed as good, the Blue Grass Commonwealth takes her place in the McAdoo column. Nor is the action of the Southern son's rejection and the outsider's substitution softened by the advancing of the theory that a Southern man can not be elected President. The explanation is founded on a surer foundation.

This breaking of the solid South in the sacrifice of her distinguished son is, as far as Kentucky is concerned, simply a break among the opportunist politicians in a mad rush for the California band wagon, which to their seeing seems well on its way to probable arrival ahead of the Knickerbocker stage coach.

EXTRAS

When you're building your house take a warning from me—
Don't alter or change anything that you see!
When once you've agreed on the cost of the place,
Go out of the city and don't show your face
To the mason, the plumber, the carpenter's crew,
For the things they call "extras" will paralyze you.

Should you say: "Put a hook here to hang up my hat."
You'll find as an "extra" they've charged you for that.
Should by chance you remark to the boss: "Do you think
The gas range should stand where you're putting the sink?"
He will say with a smile: "That's a very good change!"
But that's twelve dollars "extra" for moving the range.

Should you fancy white paint where you've ordered it blue,
Right gladly they'll smear on the white stuff for you;
But they're somewhere in hiding a man who keeps books,
Who counts up the nails and the bolts and the hooks.
And seeing white paint where the plan called for blue,
He puts down an "extra" and bills it to you.

That man is a marvel. He eats not, nor sleeps,
So strict an account of your orders he keeps.

Should you change but the type of the hinge on a door,
That goes down as an "extra" and costs so much more,
So when building a house alter nothing you see,
And beware of these "extras" which bankrupt me.

The tomato is the only vegetable which may be canned by this simple method:

To Can Tomatoes Whole: Select firm, ripe tomatoes and lower them into boiling water in a cheesecloth bag from one to two minutes, then plunge the bag into cold water for an instant; the skins are now loosened and may be easily rubbed off with the fingers. Also remove cores with a pointed, slender-bladed knife, taking care not to cut into the soft flesh of the tomato.

Pack these whole, skinned and cored tomatoes into hot, sterilized glass jars and fill the jar with boiling water to within one-fourth inch of top; add one teaspoon of salt, put on new rubber and sterilize cover, and completely seal (this is, of course, different from the one-period Cold Pack Method, in which jars are partially sealed before processing, instead of completely sealed). Place the completely-sealed jars on a rack in your wash-boiler in water to cover them; this water in the wash boiler should be boiling up to the moment the jars are put in. Draw the wash-boiler to the back of the range, or take it off the stove completely, with the jars in it (again this method differs from the One Period Cold Pack, in which the water in the wash-boiler is allowed to boil around the jars for a certain length of time.) Do not touch the wash-boiler till the water around the jars is cold—this will take five or six hours. Then take out jars, label and store. This is an easy and most satisfactory method for canning the tomato, as the vegetable does not shrink (as by the usual method) and it may also be served sliced for salads in wintertime.

Chili Sauce: Remove skins from 12 ripe tomatoes as above directed, then cut the tomatoes in slices and put them in an agateware pot off the range; add to the pot two large peeled and sliced onions, two red peppers (seeds removed) cut small, four cups of vinegar, two tablespoons of salt, two teaspoons of ground cinnamon, one teaspoon each of ground clove, nutmeg and allspice, and two cups of granulated sugar. Put this mixture over the fire and let simmer for two hours, stirring often. Then turn it at once into hot, sterilized pint-size jars and seal airtight at once. This relish is slightly sweet and is delicious to serve with cold meats.

BOUNDLESS

In honest appraisal of our lives we look longest at our limitations—our lacks. They are what trouble us. But the moment that we lift our eyes and look out into the boundless space of life, we know that our limitations belong only to the road over which we walk into the far country of experience and achievement.

What a little thing is a breath—and yet without it there would be no strong body, no intricate mind with its reaching ideas, no running feet and no ready hands.

I look out of my window. The great city is just below. Its tall buildings are erect and reaching toward the sky. And there isn't a single one but was conceived and supported by the dream of some man.

A great city is a place of dreams. Any place that is beautiful and which has been made more beautiful by the hands of men, is the child of a dream. And dreams are boundless!

You can't say that a dream is so long, so wide, so deep, so high. No great many gives his all at once. For the great man is boundless in his ideas and dreams.

That's why he is always a builder. Opportunity is boundless.

WOMAN AILING FOR A YEAR

Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Happy Results

Newcastle, Pa.—"I was all run-down and everybody thought I was going into decline. I had been ailing for a year with pains in my right side so that I could hardly stand on my feet. When I walked I felt as if something was falling. I was not able to do any work and had a nurse most of the time. She spoke to me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I gave it a fair trial. Some women think one bottle should cure them, but I did not stop at that. I took more and got better, and am able ever since to do my own housework. There was a time, when I would complain of not feeling well, that my husband would say, 'Go to the doctor.' But now he will tell me to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's, and it has always helped me. I have had druggists tell me that they had something better, but they don't tell me that now, for I take no other. I have been taking the Vegetable Compound now for five years. Any woman who cares to call or write, I will be glad to tell her how it helped me."—Mrs. MABEL LESTER SUBBANS, 515 Newell Ave., Newcastle, Pa. For sale by druggists everywhere.

B. & L. MEETING IS DELAYED TILL JUNE

The Group 2 meeting of the Ohio Building Association League, which was scheduled to be held in Hamilton Friday, has been postponed according to announcement Thursday by building and loan officials in this city.

Hamilton members of the organization explained it would not be convenient for them to entertain the group meeting at this time. The meeting will probably be held in June, on a date to be announced later, when local building and loan men will be represented.

FILIPINO IS HEIR TO BIG FORTUNE

Newkirk, Okla.—A Filipino boy of thirteen is believed to be heir to millions of dollars of oil royalties from local wells. Dugal Carmichael, who died after army service in the Philippines, did not get to enjoy sudden riches from the oil strike on his land here, but his son by a Filipino wife may get the wealth.

Gregorio Velasquez Carmichael is the boy's name and he now has a guardian and a formidable group of attorneys to fight for his share in his father's land. It is believed Gregorio's share is in excess of $7,000,000. Royalties covering a two-weeks period recently aggregated $58,000.

All the years of Gregorio's life have been spent in an inland town, remote from civilization, on one of the lesser of the Philippine group of islands. There, in the small city of Arayat, Province of Pampanga, he has played in the half wild, tropical foothills, on the streets of the little inland town.

Almost two years have been spent in searching and attempts to get in communication with the small son of Dugal Carmichael. Part of this time this search was carried on by Federico M. Unson, a young native lawyer of the island, who had been a classmate of a local attorney in a Northern university.

Scant trace had been left of Carmichael in the ranks of the United States army. The hunt was made the more difficult since the soldier's widow had remarried.

Whether Gregorio is the son of Dugal Carmichael will be determined either by concession of the interested oil companies or by a court battle. Another Filipino woman also is claiming her son is a son of Carmichael.

The Comer and Maryland Oil companies hold leases on the Carmichael property.

CHILDREN REACT TO THEIR SURROUNDINGS

The boy to the left shows the effect that shabby, ill-lighted, drab surroundings have on his physical and mental being. How different is the appearance and manner of the boy to the right where a clean, wholesome, well-painted, well-lighted room has its exhilarating effect on mind and body. It is only in a pleasant, sanitary environment that children can be happy and can reach their highest capacity for study and enjoyment. The best teacher is powerless to stir ambition and implant high ideals in soiled, dismal school rooms. One reason why children dislike school is because so many are unattractive and almost prison-like in their barrenness.

MODISH MITZI—Harry Becomes More Interested In Fashions Than Ever.

BY JAY V. JAY

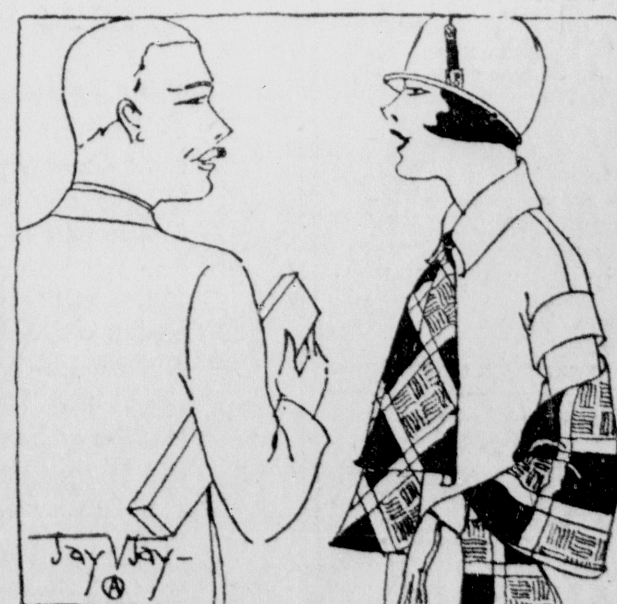

Behold Harry starting out to do some shopping on his own account. He is thinking about some stunning ties, and gloves—and certainly he needs shoes, and...well, Harry knows that he has imperative shopping needs. Since his engagement to Adelaide was announced life has been one round of parties.

Harry didn't know that he would have to pass this counter on the way to the gloves he wants to buy. Adelaide would just love these bags. He must get her one. Shall it be the buckled-trimmed red leather one, the Beauvais embroidered one, or the black suede at the left?

Harry is lost! He wants to buy everything. He wants to give Adelaide the roman striped ribbon cigarette case. But perhaps she would rather have one of these new belts. Or perhaps a sports bag of wooden beads. Harry is far away from getting his gloves. He is not even thinking about them.

"Oh, Mitzi, which do you think Adelaide would like?" questions Harry as Mitzi strolls by. There's no use replying for it's closing time. Harry will probably wait for the doors to open at nine o'clock. It's wonderful what love will do, muses Mitzi.

WATCHING OHIO AT WASHINGTON

Judging by some of the correspondence which Senator Frank B. Willis, of Delaware, is receiving, the senator is inclined to think some Ohio business men would prefer to pay higher taxes themselves and have every one else pay higher taxes than take any modification of the tax reduction bill submitted by Secretary Mellon.

The senator, with a considerable majority of the Republican members, voted for the Mellon plan consistently but the combination of Democrats and Radicals prevented the adoption of the proposed rates. The bill, however, despite its objectionable features, provides for a reduction of 25 per cent in the taxes on ordinary citizens and 10 per cent in corporation taxes. These reductions, in the opinion of Senator Willis, should be carried into effect. If the bill had been defeated and not sent into the conference, the reductions would have course been discarded along with the bill. A majority of the Republican senators thought it best to see what the conference could do with the measure and are trusting that such a bill may emerge as will eventually be passed.

Murders, six of them, have occurred in Shelby County within the past week, according to a letter received by Congressman John L. Cable, of Lima, and signed by a Shelby County resident. And then the writer adds, "the officers do not look after them or care for it so I hope you will find some way to save our soldiers to seal our country in time of war. Please excuse my ignorant plea but I have taken a full course in detective secret service work."

With many letters similar to this pouring into Congressional offices one ceases to wonder at the high death rate among the members.

Senator Simeon D. Fess and President Coolidge will deliver the Memorial Day addresses at the Arlington National Cemetery this year. The President will make a short talk and then Senator Fess will deliver the oration of the day.

The idea of holding national memorial services at Arlington originated with President Taft. Presidents Wilson and Harding also spoke in the amphitheater during their tenure of office.

America is still the land of opportunity and this fact was strongly emphasized in a letter received by Congressman John L. Cable, of Lima, from Rudl Nan, of East Youngstown, president of the City Council.

Recently Mr. Cable made a speech on the floor of the house in which he told of the naturalization of aliens in the 37th Ohio division just before they were leaving for the battle fields of France. According to Cable's speech, among those being naturalized was a young Rumanian, Rudl Nan, top sergeant of the 112th Trench Mortar Battery. Rudl Nan was known as an influential leader among his men, many of whom were of the same nationality.

As the naturalization ceremony was completed on the morning of May 21, 1918, the naturalization judge called Sergeant Nan from the ranks and asked him to address the several hundred men assembled. The ten minute speech that Nan delivered was one of the finest patriotic utterances of the war and was commented upon by papers throughout the South.

Part of his speech as gathered by Congressman Cable was as follows:

"Men, most of you, like myself, are subjects of one of the Teutonic allies against whom the United States is engaged in the present war. For 1,000 years our forefathers have been subject to the tyrants' rule. We have been allowed to come here, to raise our families in peace, to practice religious liberty, and enjoy the privileges of this great Nation. We would indeed be ungrateful if we did not offer it our services in time of greatest need. We express to the government and to the people of the United States our appreciation, not only for this opportunity to so easily become citizens but also for the privilege of serving side by side with the native sons of America in the cause to which we are all dedicated. To us of foreign birth, it is a cause 1,000 years old."

Nan read the speech in the Congressional Record and in his letter of appreciation to Representative Cable said, "Words can hardly express the feeling I had when reading your speech. I would never have thought that words spoken in deep gratitude for a country to which I owe all, should in after years be made an example of. To say that I did not feel proud over it, would be telling an untruth but at the same time I wish to assure you that what I said then, I feel today."

"Since returning from France, I have been Councilman at Large and am now serving my community as President of Council."

Every hand held out, especially if it has the power to strike, bids fair to be filled. To please, to grant a demand, or satisfy a plea, to protect one's own interest by opening the doors of the Treasury to the evil and the wickedness directly facing us, declared Congressman Charles Brand, of Urbana, as he cast his vote against the soldiers' bonus bill and stood to sustain the Presidential veto.

In voting against the bonus, Congressman Brand realized that he was possibly arousing the anger of hundreds of his voters for he said, "We must sacrifice ourselves and accept the opposition that develops. The bonus is but part of the problem. The issue is greater than the bonus, and the time has come to meet it."

"I yield my wish to recognize the patriotism and services of the World War veterans, and join the President completely in the bigger issue, of saving the public from tax destruction."

Representative C. Ellis Moore, of Cambridge, has not only budged but has blossomed out as a speaker and orator of unusual ability. The Congressman from Cambridge is of a modest disposition as far as his own abilities are concerned but recently he was "found" and now his office is flooded with requests and invitations to speak. During the past few weeks, he has appeared before the New York Constitutional League, New York City, in Baltimore and Belle Air, Maryland, before several Washington audiences and last but not least he made a speech by radio from a Washington station.

Never bet against a sure thing or on something you are not certain about is the advice now being given out by Representative Israel Foster, of Athens, since a bet of this nature cost him a five dollar straw hat. Tom Holt, a fellow Ohioan and a door keeper of the House of Representatives, is wearing the new straw paid for by Foster.

It happened like this. In the Republican cloak room the discussion between Mr. Foster and Holt turned to the subject of primaries. Foster declared that there were half as many votes cast in Ohio in the last primary as there were for the last Republican candidate for President at the election. He backed his statement up with a wager of a new hat. Holt quickly snapped it up and won the bet.

Atlantic City, N. J. May 22—Visions of an era of giant electric power and radio superpower were pictured for members of the National Electric Light Association, in convention here by Governor Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, and David Sarnoff, Vice President of the Radio Corporation of America.

Governor Pinchot hailed the development of superpower as the beginning of an economic revolution comparable to the industrial revolution which followed the introduction of steam power into industry and the subsequent development of railroad transportation.

Mr. Sarnoff told of a country linked from coast to coast by interlocking broadcasting stations of high power from which smaller stations would pick up programs to be relayed to listeners in every town and hamlet. He declared against charging for the privilege of receiving radio programs, saying the cost of broadcasting should be charged against the cost of doing business.

"The age of electricity may bring about the decentralization of industry and the restoration of country life and strengthen the small communities and family," declared Governor Pinchot. "In this fact lies the possibility of new freedom and enrichment of individual life. No such profound change in economic life is possible without profound changes in the law and government. It is the part of statesmanship by foresight to make these changes easy instead of obstructing them by blind conservatism."

In a radio address from here last night to the National Electric Light Association's convention at Atlantic City, Secretary Herbert C. Hoover discussed problems involved in a realization of the possibilities of regional super-power systems to be developed by the linking of local power and utility plants and greater use of power resources. The address was broadcast from stations at Atlantic City and other points to 5,000,000 listeners in thirty states. The success of super-power development must rest on a wise co-ordination of state regulation, Mr. Hoover said, adding that he "would regard any federal regulations such as has been found necessary in transportation as a disaster to the development of our power resources." The federal government however, he said might give "voluntary assistance in securing his co-ordination."

G. O. P. STATE MEET INDORSES LEADERS' PROPOSALS IN OHIO

Columbus, May 22.—The final session of the Republican pre-primary convention here was featured by the adoption of a resolution advocating pre-primary conventions for the future and by several speeches in which "bossism" was denounced.

Plan of the leaders to endorse a candidate never reached the convention floor. It was abandoned in the rules committee when it became apparent its success in the convention was doubtful and that chances of party success in November would be endangered if it could be forced through the convention. As a result the rules committee killed the proposed resolution to endorse a candidate by a vote of 19 to 2. By the same vote it adopted a resolution, which was approved by the convention by a vote of 1415 to 415, recommending that the convention advocate pre-primary conventions for the future and legislative enactment to give such convention a legal status.

The resolution provided that the Republican party hereafter, starting with 1926, shall hold pre-primary conventions to "recommend" to the voter "suitable" candidates for all elective state offices; that the primary law should be modified by legislative enactment as soon as possible to authorize pre-primary conventions, and that until legislation is enacted the Republican state central committee shall be authorized to call a pre-primary convention.

L. J. Taber of Barnesville, master of the National Grange and former state director of agriculture, made a bitter attack on the pre-primary convention theory. He said on the convention floor: "If this is the deliberative convention you ask us to run into, in God's name I hope we don't return to it."

On the vote on the resolution recommended by the rules committee, 17 counties voted against, 51 voted for, four divided, and 10 did not vote. Hamilton county gave its 161 votes for the resolution, Cuyahoga its 163, Franklin its 84 and Lucas its 80.

State Senator J. F. Burke of Ellyria, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, attacked the "bosses" in a statement charging them with attempting to "ramrod their handpicked candidates down the throats of the Republican party." Burke said the motto of Hynicka, Brown, Brower, Wolfe and Maschke seems to be "let the people be damned," and that "no thinking man can watch this attempted act of usurpation without determining to keep the primary law with any defects rather than turn the reins of government over to a group of commercial politicians."

Senator Frank B. Willis, who presided as temporary chairman at the Tuesday session of the convention, came to the support of the anti-endorsement forces before he returned to Washington. In a statement Willis severely criticized the effort to force through action to endorse. "The law and the constitution of Ohio provides how candidates shall be nominated," he said. "The voters will rebuke at the polls any effort to set aside the constitution, in this manner, by indirection. Let the decision as to a candidate be made by the people at the polls in August."

ALLEN-MURRISH NUPTIALS SOLEMNIZED

Simplicity marked the marriage of Miss Mary Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Allen, to Mr. Everett C. Murrish, of San Gabriel, Calif., which was performed at the home of the bride's parents, on North Detroit St., Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock.

The simple single ring ceremony, witnessed by only a few relatives and close friends was performed by the Rev. W. H. Tilford, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church.

The bride was attired in a gown of tile-colored flat crepe, with hose to match, and black suede slippers. Her hat of cream shade, was trimmed with ostrich tips, which blended from fawn shade into brown. A single Ophelia rose bud was pinned at her corsage. She was given in marriage by her father.

A refreshment course of ice cream and cake was served. A portion of the cake was a delicious serving of fruit cake sent by Mr. Murrish's mother, from California. A pink and white color scheme was carried out in the refreshments and Ophelia roses about the rooms completed the color scheme. Mr. Murrish and his bride met in San Antonio, Tex., where Mrs. Murrish had gone to visit with her brother. He is an Englishman by birth and was in army service when he met his future bride.

Mrs. Murrish is a graduate of Central High school of this city and attended Peabody College for Teachers in Nashville, Tenn., and completed her education at the University of Tennessee, at Knoxville. She is a member of the Phi Mu Sorority, a national society.

CIRCUS DAY WILL BRING XENIANS OUT ON JUNE 4

Xenia began to take on a pre-circus appearance Wednesday, when bill posters of the Gentry Bros., James Patterson Circus, began to spread "paper" advertising the coming of the show June 4.

The poster men came in advance car of the circus along with advertising men and others who will broadcast the glad tidings of the coming circus within a radius of thirty miles of Xenia.

People who say a summer is not complete with at least one visit of the "big top," the elephants, performers, clowns and peanut vendors, will no doubt herald the coming of the circus with delight.

The circus carries over 400 people, 300 horses, a large menagerie and equipment for a big street parade, and the management has been active in ridding the shows of swindling games, improper shows and riff-raff of circus followers.

Through the consolidation of two big circuses, the show this year is double its size on its last appearance here. Included among the performers are the Holliss's, bareback riders Cottrell-Powells, European equestrian performers, Matlock troupe of slack wire artists, McKee family, acrobatic and wire feats and number of others. There will be an afternoon and evening performance.

The show will appear at the old Reserve ball park, Cincinnati Avenue.

Have You a Cough?

Here's How to Get Rid of the Cough and Rebuild the Body.

Wheelerburg, Ohio—"My wife had pneumonia about six years ago and it left her with a dreadful cough. At night she would cough until she was exhausted. She could get no rest or sleep. Her stomach was so bad that she could not retain food. She went down in flesh until she was merely skin and bones. I had tried many doctors and medicines but still she grew worse. At last a neighbor who had relied upon Dr. Pierce's medicines for years, told me about Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and before she had taken all of the first bottle she began to improve. By the time she had the third bottle taken her cough had entirely stopped. She gained in flesh and weighed twenty-nine pounds more than before she took the 'Discovery'."

Go at once to your neighborhood drug store and get the 'Discovery' in tablets or liquid and you'll be surprised at the way you'll pick up.

2. To accumulate an estate that will insure a sufficient income for old age.
3. To acquire at once, if possible, an estate that will supply current needs of his family in case of his death.

One of the best things a man has is the satisfaction of being a producer.

Part of an income should be saved to create an estate.

It is also the duty of every man to acquire an estate at once, if possible, to supply the current family needs in case of death. This can only be done through life insurance, which should be considered an excellent form of investment rather than a necessary form of expense.

DAMAGE ACTION RESULT OF ACCIDENT

Suit for $15,000 damages was filed in Montgomery County Common Pleas Court Wednesday by Mrs. Ethel Catey, Fairfield, against G. H. Geiger, 1018 North Main Street, Dayton, for injuries sustained in an auto collision December 17, 1923.

The petition declares Mrs. Catey was standing in front of the parked auto of her husband, Walter R. Catey, on Riverview Avenue between Grafton and Forest Avenues, when it was struck by the defendant's auto from the rear.

The car she had been driving was jolted forward knocking her down. She declares her hip was cut and several teeth loosened.

OLD DOCUMENTS REVEAL FINANCIAL REPORT OF SCHOOLS

While searching through some old documents recently, Mrs. E. H. Carruthers, of West Market Street, found the financial report of the Xenia City schools for the year 1895-96. The published report shows an interesting contrast between the expenditures and methods of the board of that day, and today.

Mrs. Carruthers served as treasurer of the Xenia City School Board three years, and was clerk one year, and served as a member of the board six years. She, too, was a "dollar-a-year" worker, being paid that amount each year for her services. She was compelled to give a large amount of bond while holding her office, and her bondsmen were Captain McDowell, Judge Munger, and Richard Galloway.

The old report is yellowed with age and gives the minutest detail of the business transactions of the board.

An interesting item, is the fact that in the year 1896, the total wages of teachers of the elementary schools was $18,940, and the total wages of teachers of the high school—$4,900, making a total of $23,840 for teachers' salaries of the city schools.

In 1920, according to City Superintendent C. A. Waltz, the teachers' salaries of the city schools was $96,000 and in the last year, $82,000.

MORE OHIO CITIES GO ON FAST TIME

Daylight saving time became effective in Piqua Wednesday night, according to the provisions of an ordinance passed some time ago.

The ordinance was made effective in thirty days, which term expired Wednesday night. Washington C. H. City Council passed an ordinance providing for eastern time for that city last week, the change to be made at the expiration of the thirty day term.

Troy City Council has passed a similar ordinance calling for daylight saving time that will become effective in thirty days.

INJURED WHEN AUTO TURNS OVER NEAR COLUMBUS SUNDAY

Forest E. Smith, who was in an automobile party of four when the machine turned over one mile west of Columbus Sunday night, resulting in the death of Miss Dorothy Allison, 20, Bridgeport, student at Ohio Wesleyan University, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Smith, of New Burlington. It has been learned here.

Miss Allison sustained a fractured skull, which caused her death. Her roommate, Miss Lois Fennerdy, 20, of Findlay, who was also with the party, received a fractured arm while Smith and Fred W. Turner, Egemen, a student at the Ohio State University, escaped with minor cuts and bruises.

Mr. Smith is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan, where he met Miss Fennerdy several years ago, and is now bookkeeper and timekeeper for the Jeffries Manufacturing Company at Columbus. The two couples attended a dance at Green Mill dance hall, near Columbus, and were returning to Delaware when the accident occurred.

Mr. Smith was taken to a hospital, suffering from a severe cut on the back and other bruises and cuts, but was discharged from the hospital Wednesday, after recovering from the effects of the injuries.

SALARY INCREASE SOUGHT BY POLICE

A petition signed by Piqua's six policemen, asking a "reasonable" increase in salary, has been presented to the Piqua City Council.

Piqua police now work eight hours daily for $125 a month. The action asking for a raise was taken because of the ruling of the inspector of the Ohio State Bureau of Uniform Accounting that all necessary equipment for the use of police officers must be purchased by the policeman himself.

George P. Andrews, former Xenian, is a member of the Piqua department.

THE HALF-TIME WIFE By VIOLET DARE

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

SUZANNE ATWOOD, the young wife of a prominent business man, GEORFREY ATWOOD, is faced by the fact that his secretary, LINDA VALE, is trying to come between them. Geoffrey refuses to explain various unusual circumstances which lead to that suspicion.

An old beau of Suzanne's, LIEUTENANT DUNCAN HALE, tries to persuade her to leave Geoffrey, who is much older than she, get a divorce, and marry him. Geoffrey's nephew,

DICK LEIGH, is taken sick with scarlet fever, and the house is quarantined. Suzanne goes to a hotel to stay, determined to leave Geoffrey, but he follows her and engages one suite for them both. They learn from Mrs. Vale that her daughter, LOLITA, a chorus girl, whom she had never acknowledged, has some time previously eloped with Dick, who has been infatuated with her.

I was to stay at the club. Aren't you going to tell me more than that?"

"She wanted to tell him everything that was on her heart, but her pride rose like a flame that had almost flickered out, and burned explanations to make. She could still hear Linda Vale saying, 'No doubt Geoffrey will explain to you later; I really can't speak until he does!'"

And so she stood there facing him, too proud to ask for the explanations that she had always demanded in vain.

Suzanne knew that they were discussing her affairs.

XXXIII—THE ASHES OF PRIDE.

As Suzanne was entering the hotel after her drive past her own home she encountered Mrs. Haynes.

"Coming to the committee meeting?" asked that lady blithely.

"Why, I—I'd forgotten all about it," Suzanne replied.

"That's no excuse for not coming. We really need you today; this is our last meeting before the ball—and I intend that this charity ball shall make something for charity if I have to call in hold-up men and take the guests' jewels!"

Suzanne allowed herself to be towed through the lobby and up to the ballroom where the committee was surveying the ground and preparing to arrange about decorations.

A harassed florist was scuttling about, trying to make someone tell him what the color scheme was to be, and two caterers, rivals, were glaring at each other in a corner near the orchestra's platform.

A group of women stood near the door; they glanced up and spoke almost too eagerly, Suzanne thought; as they turned away she knew that they were discussing her affairs.

"Probably I'm too sensitive," she told herself. "But if this sort of thing goes on much longer I'll certainly lose my mind!"

Mrs. Haynes managed to get everyone together and settle down to business during the next quarter of an hour, but so many of the members wanted to discuss almost anything but the matters in hand, that at six o'clock they were still uncertain about most of the important questions that had to be decided.

Under cover of a spirited discussion as to the hour at which the specially engaged dancer should be allowed to perform Suzanne slipped away.

She found Geoffrey waiting for her in his suite.

"Suzanne," he began eagerly as she entered the living room, "tell me what happened last night, won't you? When we went to the club I felt, somehow, that we had begun over again; that staying here at the hotel till Dick is out of quarantine would be having a second honeymoon. Then the first thing I know, you left, and sent me that message, that "I went out to the house today," he continued after a moment, when he saw that she was not going to meet him even halfway. "Fate is still there, says he rather likes being shut up where nobody can disturb him. He shouted at me from the window. And Lolita is there, too; seems to be helping the nurse to take care of Dick. Tell me, dear, why didn't you let me know of this infatuation of Dick's for the girl?"

"Oh, I wanted to, but I was trying so hard to make him be sensible and not run away with her. I asked her to come to the house. I did everything that I could, and Dick promised that he'd be good. I had no idea that she knew Mrs. Vale."

"Then you didn't know of their elopement?"

"No!" Suzanne was thunder-struck.

"Well, there was one; they were married secretly, and nobody knew of it until Lolita got worried when she didn't hear from Dick and went to her mother and confessed. Mrs. Vale is quite pleased about it, I think, though she pretends to be horrified, and says that it couldn't have happened if you had not taken the girl into our home."

"And do you believe that?" demanded Suzanne. "She's pulled the wool over your eyes about other things, but surely you can see that she lied to you then. Oh, Geoff, why do you insist on letting this woman make a fool of you?"

"She's a good business woman," he insisted stubbornly.

"Yes, you've made her one. She wasn't a business woman when she first went to work for you, but just a stenographer. You taught her everything she knows. You've let her get the habit of thinking that she is indispensable to you in your home as well as at the office, and I won't have it any longer! I've said before that I wouldn't, and I've tried to break away, and couldn't. But now, Geoff, please be reasonable. Please send her away."

"I can't," he replied bluntly.

Tomorrow—The Wheels of Destiny.

LOYD GEORGE MAY LEAD DRY CAMPAIGN

London, May 21—That Lloyd George is likely to lead a great prohibition campaign in the near future is the confident belief of his intimate friends.

It seems that the idea has been simmering for some months in the agile brain of the ex-Premier—ever since his tour of the United States. At present he does not contemplate the possibility of complete prohibition in Britain. But he foresees the possibility of great restrictions whereby the present national drink bill of five million dollars daily will be cut down to a minimum.

His views on the question were made strikingly clear in the recent debate in the House of Commons on the Welsh Local Option bill. He then described his American tour and paid a wonderful tribute to the already evident effects and benefits of prohibition. He said he had not allowed himself to be deluded or blinded by the flagrant breaches of the law to be seen every day in New York and the other big cities. And he declared that he had seen in the Middle West a law-abiding, happy, contented people, who in the next generation will have completely lost the desire or the taste for drink.

Lloyd George went on to declare that prohibition has come to stay; that the women of the United States are solidly behind the movement, and that prohibition means increased industrial efficiency and a more thrifty and industrious working class.

From the political viewpoint, which never leaves his mind, such a campaign would have enormous advantages. He would carry with him the majority of his own party, the whole of the Labor Party and the great section of the Tories which is represented by Lady Astor. His opponents would be the extreme Tories and the brewing interests. And he is shrewd enough to know that most of the nine million women voters of Britain would be supporting him.

Another factor weighing with him is that he believes a successful anti-liquor campaign might be made the key of a great scheme of social reform. He thinks that the housing and unemployment problems in Britain might, to a large extent, be almost automatically solved by the saving of the money now spent on drink. And at the back of his mind there is the conviction that a successful social campaign of the kind might restore him to office and power.
